WALKER ZANGER™

6th Avenue Ceramic Tile Collection

6th Avenue collection is specially made in a Small Batch Format | Samples can vary from actual production. Differences in color, shape, size, moisture absorption, surface finish, texture, and coefficient of friction, are the unique characteristics that distinguish each of these tile products and should be considered in each customer’s purchase decision and decision regarding the intended use of the product selected.

Variations of these characteristics can occur between production lots of the same product type and are inherent characteristics resulting from the manufacturing process. All sizes are nominal only and may vary. Finish trim pieces require a different manufacturing process than the field tile and as a result may vary slightly in color. Glazing on extreme relief (textured) ceramic tiles will vary in thickness. As a result, the glazing may appear darker and lighter in different areas throughout the tile.

Glazed ceramic products are subject to crazing. Crazing is the cracking solely within the fired glaze due to tensile stresses, temperature fluctuation, or expansion and contraction of the tile body or setting bed. Crazing is not a defect, nor does it affect the durability of the products and is an inherent characteristic of the manufacturing process. Some tiles are intentionally induced to craze to produce what is known as a crackle finish. Crackle glaze tiles should be sealed with penetrating sealer prior to grouting to keep the grout from staining the clay body. Crackle glaze tiles should not be used on kitchen counter surfaces or surfaces subject to heavy uses. In areas that experience regular moisture, such as in showers, regular resealing of crackle glazes is a necessary practice.

Vapor & Moisture Barrier Disclaimer | When stone products or ceramic, porcelain, glass or metal tile is installed on a concrete slab at ground level, it is the responsibility of the customer and the customer’s installer to ensure that the slab is dry and fully cured and that a proper vapor moisture barrier is in place between the concrete slab and the stone product, ceramic, glass or metal tile prior to installation. All shower floor substrates and twelve inches up the adjacent perimeter walls must have a waterproof membrane on the top surface of the fully cured mortar bed prior to tiling.

Electronic Notice, Delays, Inspection Requirement | Buyer agrees to receive all notices, invoices, and other communications by electronic means, at the email address that has been provided by Buyer. Walker Zanger is not responsible for delivery delays beyond its control. It is the responsibility of the customer, the customer’s representatives, general contractor, subcontractors, installer and any person responsible to the owner regarding the installation of the product or the finished product, to inspect each Walker Zanger product upon delivery to the job site. All merchandise should be checked in and inspected immediately upon delivery, using the Walker Zanger packing list sent with the merchandise, to insure the delivery of all listed items and the absence of damage. All claims of damage must be reported by facsimile transmission within 48 hours of delivery to the delivery carrier and to Walker Zanger. Do not return merchandise without strictly complying with the return merchandise policy set forth below. Time is of the essence in regard to these inspection and reporting requirements.

Return Merchandise Policy | This is a special order product, absolutely no returns will be accepted.
